COLLEGIATE

Trevecca completes new Alumni Center

Wednesday, March 16, 2011

Nashville, Tennessee

Trevecca Nazarene University completed construction on its new Alumni Center and moved into offices in early March.

The three-story building, located on the main drive into the campus - across from Waggoner Library - houses the offices of the president and external relations. This week, the Board of Trustees will conduct some of its meetings in the new12,000-square-foot building.

MIMS Architecture of Hermitage, Tennessee, designed the center and American Constructors managed the project, which is the first new building the university has built since Waggoner Library in 1999.

The project cost US$1.9 million and includes an alumni hospitality center, meeting rooms, and offices for 20 employees in its 7,600 square feet of finished space and provides 4,300 square feet of storage. Construction was made possible by donations primarily from younger alumni and signaled that younger alumni accepted responsibility for Trevecca's future, university President Dan Boone had said.

--Trevecca Nazarene University

Trevecca Nazarene University opened its new, 12,000-square-foot Alumni Center this month.

VIEW SLIDE SHOW
E-MAIL ARTICLE
VIEW PRINTER-FRIENDLY
CHANGE TEXT SIZE
SHARE ON FACEBOOK
SHARE ON TWITTER

Most Recent
- Crocker named new dean of Olivet's School of Professional Studies
- High school students, sponsors converge on Eastern Nazarene College
- Trevecca completes new Alumni Center
- NNU receives $10,000 grant
- Nazarenes in the News

Like 5 people like this. Be the first of your friends.

Discuss Trevecca completes new Alumni Center in our forum
Post a Message | Read Messages (0) | Report Abuse

< BACK TO COLLEGIATE NEXT ARTICLE >

Submit News | eNews Archive | Printable Top Stories (PDF) | Church of the Nazarene | RSS | RSS Help | Contact Us